Assignment: Monet Remake

Now that you have some new elements in your toolbox, we are going to make some improvements to a Monet website. You will find it very similar to the Van Gogh website from last week. Let's take a look…

Claude Monet
Claude Monet was a famous French painter whose work gave a name to the art movement Impressionism. In April 1874, in an independent exhibit that Monet and some other artists put together, Monet displayed his painting entitled "Impression, Sunrise" (1873), depicting Le Havre's harbor in a morning fog. Critics used the title to name the distinct group of artists as "Impressionists," saying that their work seemed more like sketches than finished paintings. Though they meant it in a derogatory way, the artists embraced the title and the term stuck.
Claude Monet was born on November 14, 1840, in Paris, France. He always loved the outdoors and started drawing at a young age. When he was sixteen his mother died and he went to live with his aunt, as his father did not approve of his wanting to pursue art. He served in the army for two years, but after recovering from typhoid fever, his aunt purchased his release from service in exchange for Monet agreeing to enroll in an art school. He soon became disillusioned with with what he considered to be the outdated methods of the Renaissance and began painting his own way.
Monet's paintings are well loved and are part of art collections all over the world. To see his paintings, you will have to visit one of the many museums that have them in their collections.

The Paintings of Monet
Monet is most famous for his landscapes, as he ambitiously tried to capture the French countryside. He also painted many portraits, often using his wife, Camille, as his model. He is probably most known for his water lily and bridge paintings.

Museums that Host Monet Paintings
There are many Museums that own Monet paintings as part of their collections. The most well-known in the United States are the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the Museum of Modern Art, both in New York City.
If you are willing to travel, you might consider visiting the Marmottan Monet Museum in Paris, France, Monet's homeland. It contains the largest Monet collection in the world.

Assignment: Monet Remake

Make the following changes:

- Remove any empty tags and replace them with  tags.

- Add spacing in your text editor to make your HTML more readable.

  - Only <html>, <head> and <body> tags should be on the far left. Everything else should be indented.
  - Use your best judgement when indenting other tags.
  - Remember that you can leave blank lines in your text editor for readability without affecting how the page is presented in your browser.

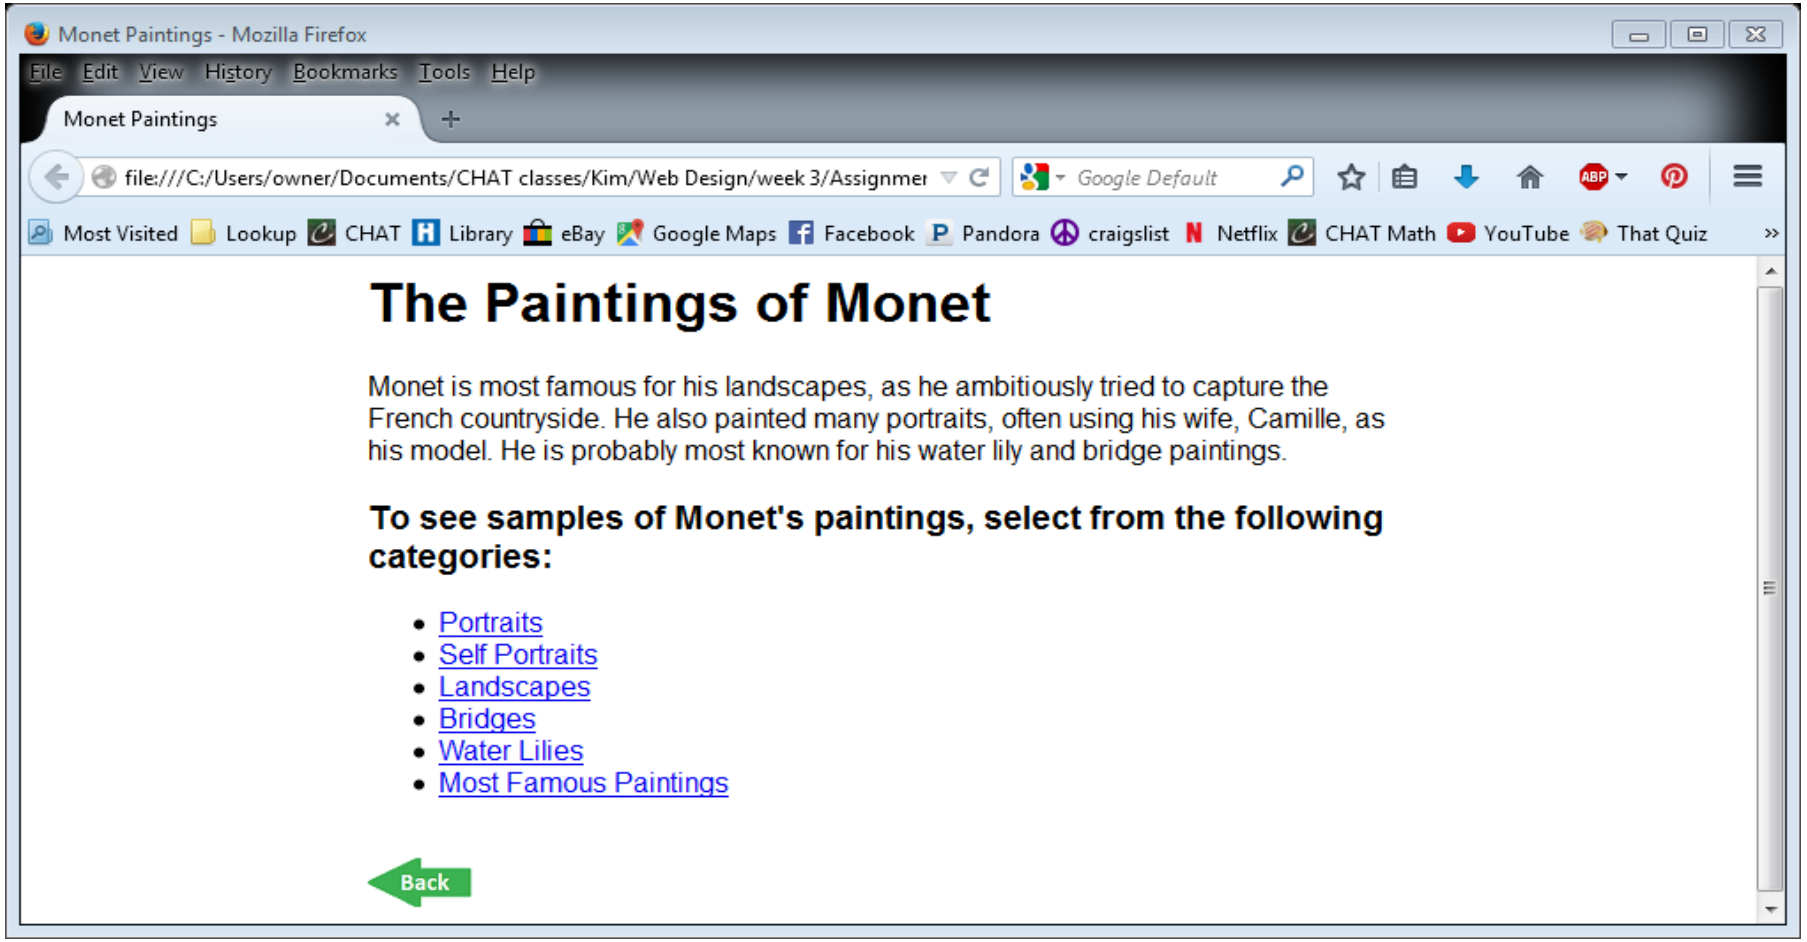
- In the file “paintings.html” remove the list of headings and make the types of paintings into an unordered list below the opening paragraph.



- Make each item in your list of types of paintings into a hyperlink to its corresponding web page.

Don’t forget your <ul> and tags!

<h2>Portraits</h2>

becomes

<li>Portraits</li>

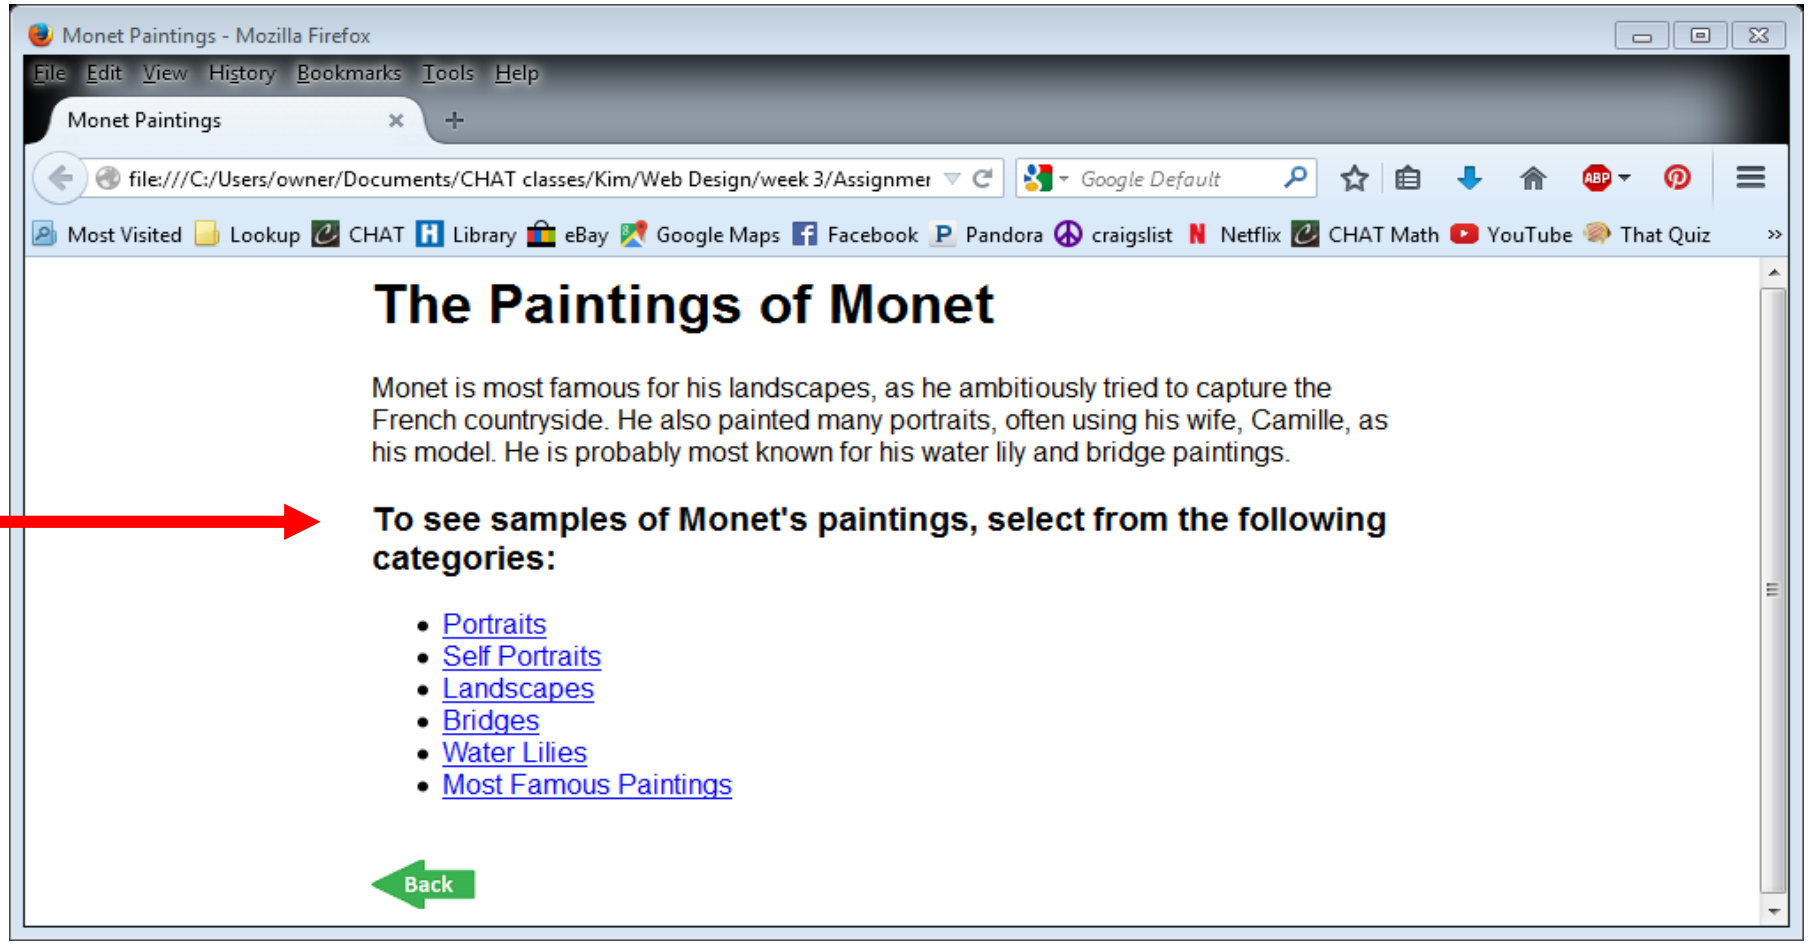
- Add text above your list to tell your user they can click on the items of the list to see the paintings. Use <h3> for this text.



- Adjust the text on the Landscapes and Water Lilies pages so the text is not so large in the intro. Change from <h2> to  for these intros.

- On the page for each museum, we would like to take out the line break between the address and the phone number. To do this, put the address and phone number in a single  tag, but put a  after the zip code.

<img src="../images/Met.jpg">

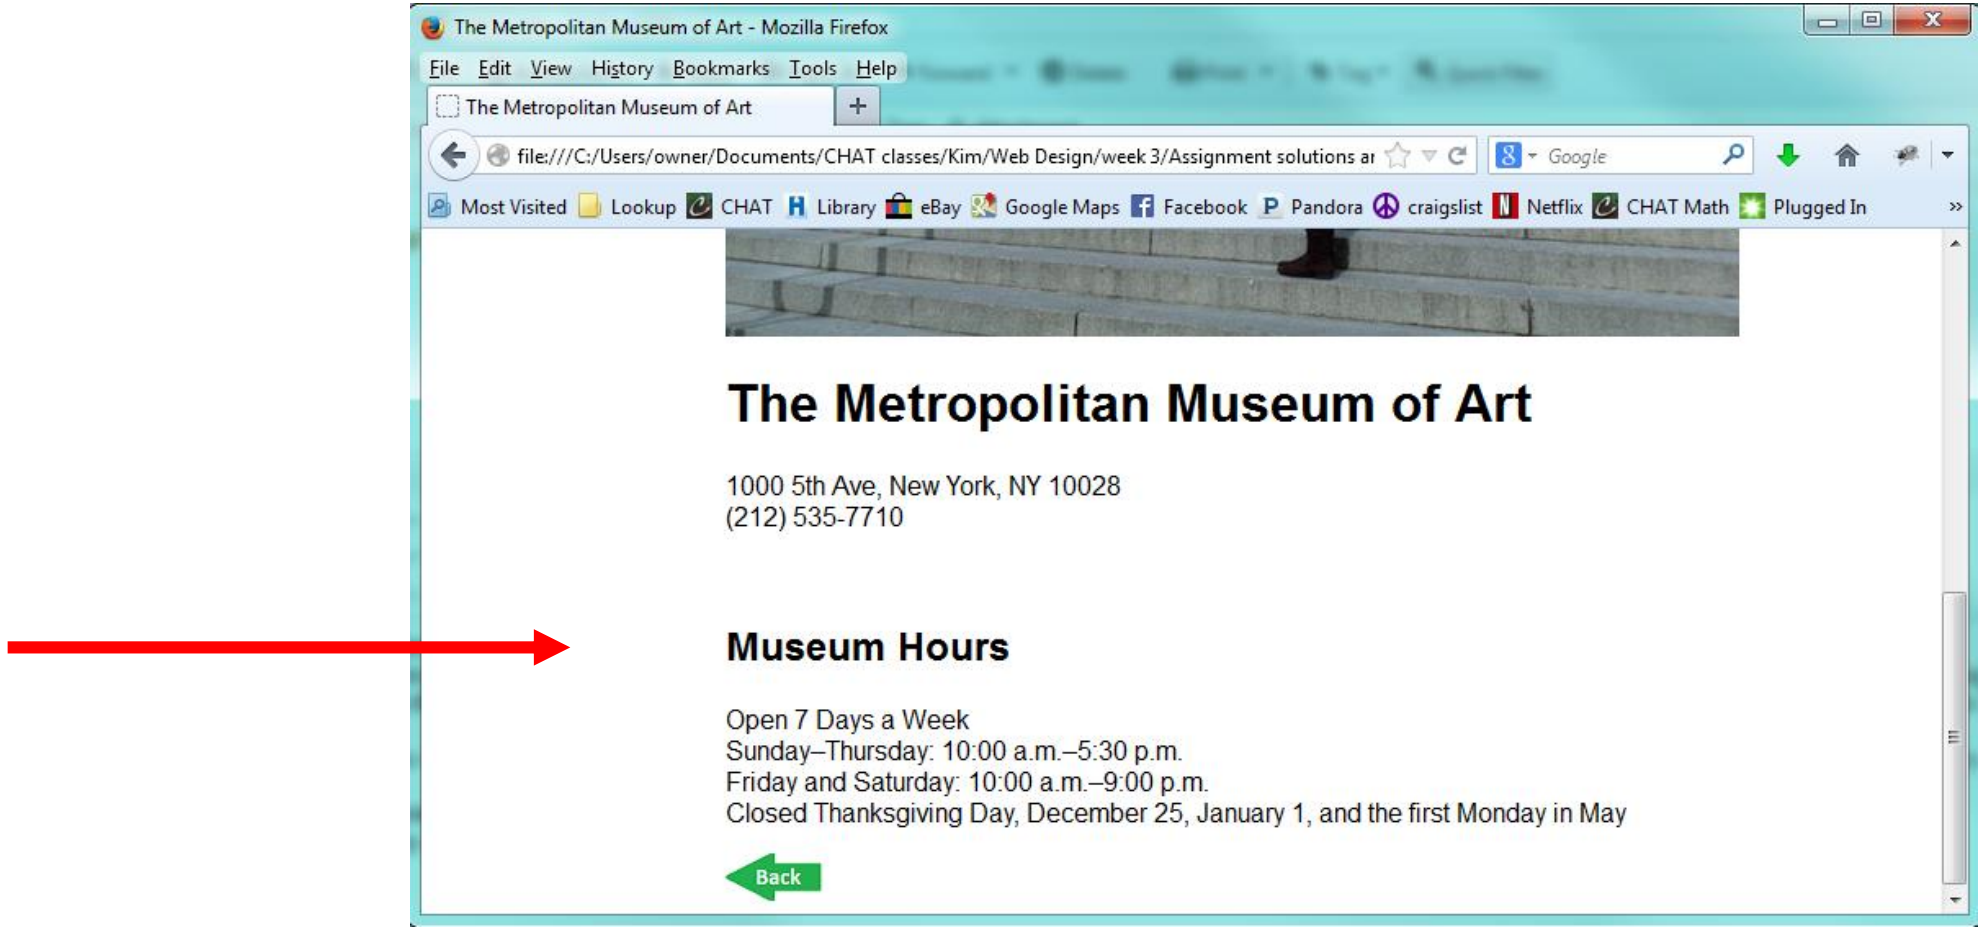
- Also on the page for each museum, include the hours of operation. You can decide how you want to format this. To get the information you will have to find your way to the actual website for the museum on the Internet.



- Change the way that each painting's information is formatted by using definition lists. In addition, let's emphasize the name of the painting using . For example, in "famous.html" format the information as follows:

<dl>
    <dt>"Bridge over a Pond of Water Lilies"</dt>
        <dd>1899. Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York, New York.</dd>
</dl>

- Optional: Visit http://www.w3schools.com/tags/ref_colorpicker.asp and choose a different color for the background. Add this to the <style> element like you did in the turtle assignment.
